Site renewal and Women's Shelter expansion

Proyecto Pastoral at Dolores Mission

A Case for Support.

Standing strong alongside Boyle Heights for four decades

For 40 years, Boyle Heights residents, particularly women, have shaped Proyecto Pastoral. Together, we build community power through grassroots projects in education, leadership, and service.

This campaign continues our Jesuit tradition of putting faith into action, with spaces for residents to organize, gather, and care for one another. Together, we can make an even greater difference.

More space to do what makes us special.

Residents and staff have built incredible programs that have outgrown our existing facilities that were not designed for the breadth and volume of today's work.

Shelter capacity

The Women's Shelter at GHP is a unique program exclusively serving unhoused women ages 55 and older with the goal of transitioning towards permanent housing.

Originally a pilot program, the shelter now, 14 years later, has 15 beds in a humble space that wasn't intended to be a shelter.

The new building will provide 24, with dedicated spaces for resident support, increasing our residents' privacy and dignity.

Program space

Our site needs more room to accommodate the growing needs of Boyle Heights. Dedicated program areas and shared gathering spaces will better support our work.

The proposed campus.

Updated Women's Shelter at GHP

A new 4,200-square-foot building will house a 24-bed shelter for women ages 55 and older upstairs, with an expanded parking lot below.

Programs and community

The renovated headquarters will provide space for Promesa Boyle Heights (PBH), Comunidad en Movimiento (CEM), community meetings, and the administrative staff who support Proyecto's five core programs.

Operating sustainability

Community spaces that invite change.

Proposed design, October 2026

Community gatherings

Multipurpose spaces for workshops and gatherings. A 345 sq ft community kitchen opens onto a 2,050 sq ft community courtyard.

Resident leadership

Dedicated PBH and CEM work areas, Rita's Room, and a separate meeting room for support collaboration and resident leadership.

Shelter Support

A 600 sq ft community room, wellness room, private meeting room, in-kind donations area, and terrace complement for the 24-bed shelter.

Women’s Shelter

Women ages 55 and older will have 24 shelter beds, a community room for shared meals, a wellness room, and private meeting space. Residents can spend time outdoors on the terrace and build connections across the site.

Renovation will increase bed capacity by 60%
